This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY NOTE.

In 1657, Edward Hopkins, then a member of Parliament under the Commonwealth, and formerly Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, died in London. He had returned to England in 1652 to take possession of a handsome property which had fallen to him there by the death of a brother, and included the lucrative and sinecure office of Warden of the Fleet Prison. By his will, his New England property was left for educational purposes, Rev. John Davenport, of New Haven, being one of those named to dispose of it in that manner. On May 30, 1660, Mr. Davenport deposited with the Court of Magistrates, then holding its May Term at New Haven,* the main papers relating to this trust, and on June 4, 1660, he appeared before the General Court of the Colony and presented a formal deed of gift and settlement, turning over to the Governor, magistrates and elders of the Colony the right to recover and collect whatever, under Gov. Hopkins' will, was to enure to the benefit of a "schoole & colledg" there, but reserved to himself a veto power as to any matter proposed, so long as he might remain in New Haven, and to himself and the other elders (or pastors) of the Colony a right to propose further terms and limitations thereafter. The Court accepted the trust and confided its execution to a committee consisting of the magistrates and teaching elders of the Colony.†

The first meeting of this committee was held on June 28, 1660, and the first Rector of the school was then engaged.‡ This school was to be a Colony Grammar School, supported at the outset by taxation;§ but it was anticipated that funds from the Hopkins bequest would soon become available for its support in whole or part.

Two years later, the Colony of Connecticut obtained a charter from Charles II, which included New Haven within its limits, and by 1665 the absorption was consummated. Meanwhile, for want of funds, "considering y^e^ distraction of y^e^ time," the school had been discontinued towards the close of 1662.¶ Early in 1664 (April 28), Mr. Davenport brought the matter up at a town meeting, and offered to turn the trust over to the town, "yet to be improved to that end for which it was given by Mr. Hopkins, viz.—to fit youth (by learning) for the service of God in church and commonwealth." This offer was at once accepted, "the magistrates, elders, deacons and deputies of the court, as they shall arise, to be a committee for this trust." It was not, however, until a later date that any of

New Haven's share of the Hopkins money was finally received, and on April 18, 1668, Mr. Davenport, who had now removed to Boston, by a new instrument, after reciting that the discontinuance of the Colony school in November, 1662, had worked a forfeiture of his grant of 1660, reconstituted the trust, to the end "that the grammar school or college at New Haven, already founded and begun, may be provided for, maintained and continued for the encouragement and bringing up of hopeful youths in the languages and other good literature for the public use and service of the country." *

This paper named several trustees, and provided that upon the death of any of them or his removal from New Haven some other person "of known integrity and faithfulness" should be appointed by the surviving or remaining trustees to take his place, so that there might forever be "a certain and orderly succession of able and fit persons to manage the several trusts. He added these solemn words: "And because I stand under an engagement to attend the will of the said donor deceased, that his ends may be attained in the dispose of his said legacy, if the said committee or their successors shall find the said ends by this grant not attained at New Haven, and that the said grammar or collegiate school hereby endowed and provided for should be dissolved and wholly cease, I do obtest them by the will of the dead which no man may alter, and by the trust committed to me and them, whereof we must give our account to the great Judge of all, that this gift of the said Edward Hopkins, Esquire, deceased, be by them the said committee wholly transferred and disposed of elsewhere, where the said ends may be attained."

The catalogue which follows will show that the succession of Trustees and of Rectors has been maintained in due course to the present time, and that the school that perpetuates the name of Governor Hopkins in New Haven has now during the whole of two centuries and parts of two more been fulfilling his purpose of fitting "youth, by learning, for the service of God in church and commonwealth."

Until far beyond its first century, it was the only school in New Haven for preparing boys for college.† Its first printed annual catalogues were issued in 1847, and no official registers of the students before 1839 have been preserved. In preparing the roll of alumni for the period prior to that date, the compilers of the present work have therefore been obliged to rely on secondary sources, and in respect to the earlier years especially on probabilities arising from known circumstances and conditions. Much assistance was rendered by some of the alumni who were in the school in the first quarter of the nineteenth century, and valuable information has been obtained from books of biography, letters, old college catalogues, the Yale matriculation registers, class reports, church manuals, historical discourses, and similar publications, as well as from family genealogies and tradition. The libraries of Yale University, the New Haven Colony Historical Society, the Connecticut Historical Society, the American Antiquarian Society and the New England Historical and Genealogical Society have also been consulted. Undoubtedly, however, many names have been omitted which ought to have been included, and probably some included which ought to have been omitted.

* This deed is given at length in Atwater's History of New Haven Colony, p. 555.

† In 1795, Jared Mansfield, a former Rector, opened a school for both sexes, which he conducted till 1801. In 1828, a boarding school, known as the New Haven Gymnasium, was set up by Rev. Sereno Edwards Dwight and Henry Edwin Dwight, but it was discontinued in 1831. Shortly afterward a school was set up on Wooster Place by Stiles French and Truman French, which was soon consolidated with a military school opened in 1836 by Gen. William H. Russell. It became subsequently known as the Collegiate and Commercial Institute, and was maintained until his death in 1885. Meanwhile a public high school had been instituted in New Haven, and in 1863 a classical course was introduced there.

The design has been to insert the name of every student who was in attendance for a year or more, and to put it, down to 1858 inclusive, under the date of the year during which (as nearly as can be ascertained) he left the school. In 1859 the annual catalogues first state the class in which each student is enrolled. Beginning with that year, each name is given under the year in which the class to which he belonged was graduated from the school, whether he did or did not remain through the entire course. In 1886 diplomas on graduation were first awarded. Beginning with the class of that year, the names of those receiving such diplomas are printed in small capitals. The place of residence stated is in all cases (or is intended to be) that of the latest residence in case of the dead; of the present residence in case of the living.

In 1858, at a meeting of the Alumni of the School, it was voted to form a permanent Association of the Alumni, and in 1859 the "Hopkins Grammar-School Association" was organized accordingly, under articles providing for an annual meeting, during the week of the Yale Commencement.

In 1860 the Association celebrated, at such a meeting, the Bicentennial Anniversary of the founding of the institution, and an appropriate and scholarly discourse was pronounced by Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, D.D., of the (H. G. S.) class of 1838. This, with appended notes of great antiquarian value, made a pamphlet of 70 pages, and will give to anyone interested much fuller information as to many of the events to which reference has above been made. In June, 1910, it is proposed to celebrate the 250th anniversary of the foundation.

The Boston Latin School was founded in 1635, and that of Roxbury, Massachusetts, in 1645. The Hopkins Grammar School of New Haven is the next oldest preparatory school in the United States. The distinctive character originally impressed upon it by its founders has been always maintained. It is a classical school for boys, directed to the special object of fitting them for college. The selection and arrangement of studies is made with that view, and the principle of "co-education" has never been admitted. It was formally considered by the Trustees as early as 1684, and their decision is thus expressed in an order entered upon the records of the School: "that all Girles be excluded as Improper and Inconsistent wth such a Grammar Schoole as y^{e} law informes, & is y^{e} Designe of this Settlement^{t}."

The original school house was upon the Green near the spot where the United Church now stands. In 1723 a new one was built and occupied, also upon the Green, but at a point nearly opposite the present gateway of Phelps Hall.* In 1801 the School was installed in a new building erected for its use on the South West corner of Temple and Crown streets, and there it remained until 1840, when it was removed to its present site on the North West corner of High and Wall streets. The first school building there was that surmounted by a belfry, which forms the center of the present edifice. The rear addition was made in 1860, and the main front was erected in 1873. Besides the play ground adjoining the school house yard, the School has owned for some years, through the generosity of Mr. Charles R. Pratt, of New York (H. G. S. 1891), who gave $7000 for the purpose, ample athletic grounds, near the Yale Field. These cover ten acres and are known as the Pratt Field.

The present catalogue has been completed by a committee consisting of the senior Trustee, the Rector, and Professor Arthur B. Woodford, who has been for some years one of the Faculty of Instruction; the two latter having special charge of the lists of students in the classes since 1846. Great assistance has been rendered by Professor George E Day (H. G. S. 1829), the oldest living graduate; Mrs. Edward Olmstead of Wilton, Connecticut; Professor Franklin B. Dexter of Yale University; Mr. George L. Fox, for many years Rector of the School; and Mr. Ziegler Sargent (H G. S. 1900).

It is intended to send a copy of this catalogue to each of the living alumni of the School, whose address is known. If any of them should fail to receive one, he is requested to write to the Rector, Charles Heald Weller, New Haven, and another copy will be forwarded to the address given. Extra copies, bound in flexible cloth, can also be procured from him, by any one, for fifty cents apiece.

Any one who can furnish any corrections or additions as to any names, or any dates, is requested to communicate them to Professor J. Willard Gibbs, the Secretary of the Trustees, New Haven.
